

CAPT Luis Rodriguez, MS

Board Position: Field Representative

CAPT Rodriguez is an Environmental Health Specialist in the CDC National Center for Environmental Health in Atlanta, GA. He is an experienced public health professional with assignments with the Food and Drug Administration and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. He has national and international experience in capacity building, cooperative agreements, emergency response, training, inspections, and investigations.

PHS has taken him around the nation and the world, serving mostly in the field with assignments in Puerto Rico, Maryland, Florida, and Georgia. He has served in 40 international TDYs in 22 countries with multiple OPDIVs, and several deployments.

CAPT Rodriguez chairs the National COA Local Branch Committee, served in the National COA Retiree Committee, and has been part of several COA branches. Most notably, he served as President for two branches, one of which was the recipient of Branch of the Year. He understands that partnering and working collaboratively with other officers is key to accomplish short and long-term outcomes for our officers and the communities we serve.

He is inspired by service to others and deeply dislikes injustice. His contributions to COA have been outstanding and desires to continue supporting COA for years to come.
